

WHAT DOES LOCAL LOVE LOOK LIKE?

Paul, a teen parent, thought his only option was to drop out of school and find a job to support his family. A United Way funded agency helped him to see he had other paths available. Paul chose to return to school, providing him greater employment opportunities that positively impacted his family and the community. Today, Paul is engaged in public service, volunteerism and he works for the agency that set him on that path. It's not just about the impact a program has tomorrow, but the long-term outcome for our community.
